

Drawing Effective Stellar Seals

Drawing the glyph after ascertaining what we want to achieve will temporarily represent the stars, but scrying their essences in the glyph is a wholly separate issue. In this presentation none of the stellar essences were scried in this particular glyph, it is a mere excercise. It is conjoining the Abraxas-Orion-Sah stars, or the Seven Luminaries guarding the Tomb of Osiris with Isis-Sothis, the follower of Osiris and Aldebaran. Sothis is a triple-star system with splendid Isiac vigour of revealing and holiness, the Seven Luminaries each have a different nature ascertained in the Egyptian Book of the Dead, Aldebaran is fiercely imperial with Mars-like qualities, although less malevolent than our Mars.

Withal knowledge of the natures of the selected stars and henceforth their combinations and permutations, the work in astroglyphs may bring unexpected results. Compendia assigning mixed natures of known planets to the stars are insufficient, especially the ones that treat constellations amateurishly, assigning a single nature to all the stars in a constellation. Each star should be studied separately, both astronomically, astrologically, and hypophetically, either via astrophotography in a clean aethyric setting, on a clear starry night, or in an astronomical observatory with intelligencers of the stars and planets that readily render us the teaching invoking parts of essences of the stars into us, so that we may observe, discern and learn of them and their secrets.

We may simplify the glyphing in whatsoever manner we like, as long as the original essences are preserved, the positions of planets and the moon while performing the essential glyphing on Earth is not without influence, as the hierarchy of performing those glyphs is such: First we observe the Moon and its palaces, then the Sun and invert the stellar position in which it is (If it is in Cancer from the perspective of Earth it received the rayings of Capricorn), afterwards we establish the positions of planets above the horizon in the direction of the constellation, stars or paratellonta that we work with. Let us remember that stellar cultures differed, and being limited to Western constellations is incorrect. Counterintuitive working may bring diametrically different results, as long as we keep in mind to focus, study and essentialize the incarnated essences profoundly and wisely.
